

John Clancy Founder and CEO

John Clancy is the founder and CEO of Galvia, an AI platform that helps organisations make smarter, faster decisions by unlocking the full value of their data. Since 2017, Galvia has worked with global enterprises like Nestlé, Medtronic, and NTT DATA Business Solutions, as well as SME clients such as Petstop and higher education institutions like the University of Galway and Sheffield Hallam University (UK).

With a focus on connected intelligence, Galvia's platform brings together data from across an organisation to deliver real-time insights, predictions, and prompts – empowering better decision-making at every level.

A recognised thought leader in the AI space, John is a regular speaker at industry events and contributes expert commentary to media on AI, data strategy, and digital transformation. In 2022, he was appointed to the Enterprise Digital Advisory Forum (EDAF), where he advises the Irish government on driving AI adoption across industry.

John has received multiple awards for scaling companies across various sectors. He is passionate about building successful businesses, forging lasting partnerships, leading high-performing teams, and delivering real value through innovation.
